Nursing home rezoned; taxi proposal defeated

By KIRK WEBER
Democrat-Capital Staff Writer

The City Council Monday night acted on two issues that had been on the agenda for several weeks.

The council approved a rezoning request by Fairview Nursing Home and denied an application to establish a new taxi service in Sedalia.

The rezoning request was approved by a 6-2 vote, with First Ward Republican Allen Hawkins and Second Ward Democrat Raymond Bales voting against the request.

The proposal was similar to one previously rejected by the council. It was approved by a 5-3 majority at that time, but a three fourths majority was necessary for approval, because of objections raised by residents in the neighborhood.

Hawkins and Bales also opposed the initial request, along with then Fourth Ward Republican Robert Eidson. Eidson was defeated for re-election by Democrat Richard Jones, who joined the majority in approving the request.

The rezoning will allow the owners of the nursing home, John C. Finley and John T. Finley, to build a 64-bed addition to the facility, making the total bed count 120.

The council heard arguments on the request at its last meeting April 19, but the measure was left hanging when a motion for a second reading of the bill was defeated.

The defeat of the second reading motion left the bill before the council, to be considered at any time that a councilman might make a new motion for a second reading.

Such a motion was made and passed 7-1, with Bales opposing the motion.

Without further discussion, a third reading took place, then the bill was voted on and passed.

Mrs. C. T. Briggs, 1506 South Warren, who has acted as spokesman for a group of about 30 residents in the area opposed to the rezoning, said the council's action was "the biggest farce of justice I've ever seen. The new council had their minds made up ... and never heard our side of the story. We feel they are not for the people..."

Mrs. Briggs said about five families from the immediate area were present at Monday night's meeting. "We don't think they came with an open mind. As a matter of fact, Richard Jones (Fourth Ward Democrat) told me he had his mind made up before he was elected," she said.

She also said there was no discussion of the issue before the council vote was taken. Mrs. Briggs said the citizens' group had not contacted its attorney, James Durley, as of Tuesday morning, but planned to do so later in the day to discuss a possible appeal of the action.

The taxi issue was dealt with in a special hearing following the regular council meeting.

The application for the new taxi service was filed by John C. Knapp, 1319 South Carr.

Knapp told the council that he is a disabled veteran, who spent more than 16 years in the Marine Corps. Since 1969, he worked for Springfield Yellow Cab Co., until coming here recently to start his own business.

He contended that the city was not being served adequately, especially between midnight and 5 a.m. He told the council that his cabs would operate on a 24-hour basis, and that his drivers would attempt to be courteous and helpful to all passengers, the elderly in particular.

Knapp was opposed by Ray Hatfield, owner-operator of the City and Yellow Cab Companies, currently the only companies operating in Sedalia. Neither company had operated between midnight and 5 a.m., although service has recently been resumed during this period.

Hatfield's attorney, Kenneth Romines, told the council that Knapp and his attorney, William Brown, had not shown a need for a new cab company. He said they had relied on "innuendo, and had not brought forth facts."

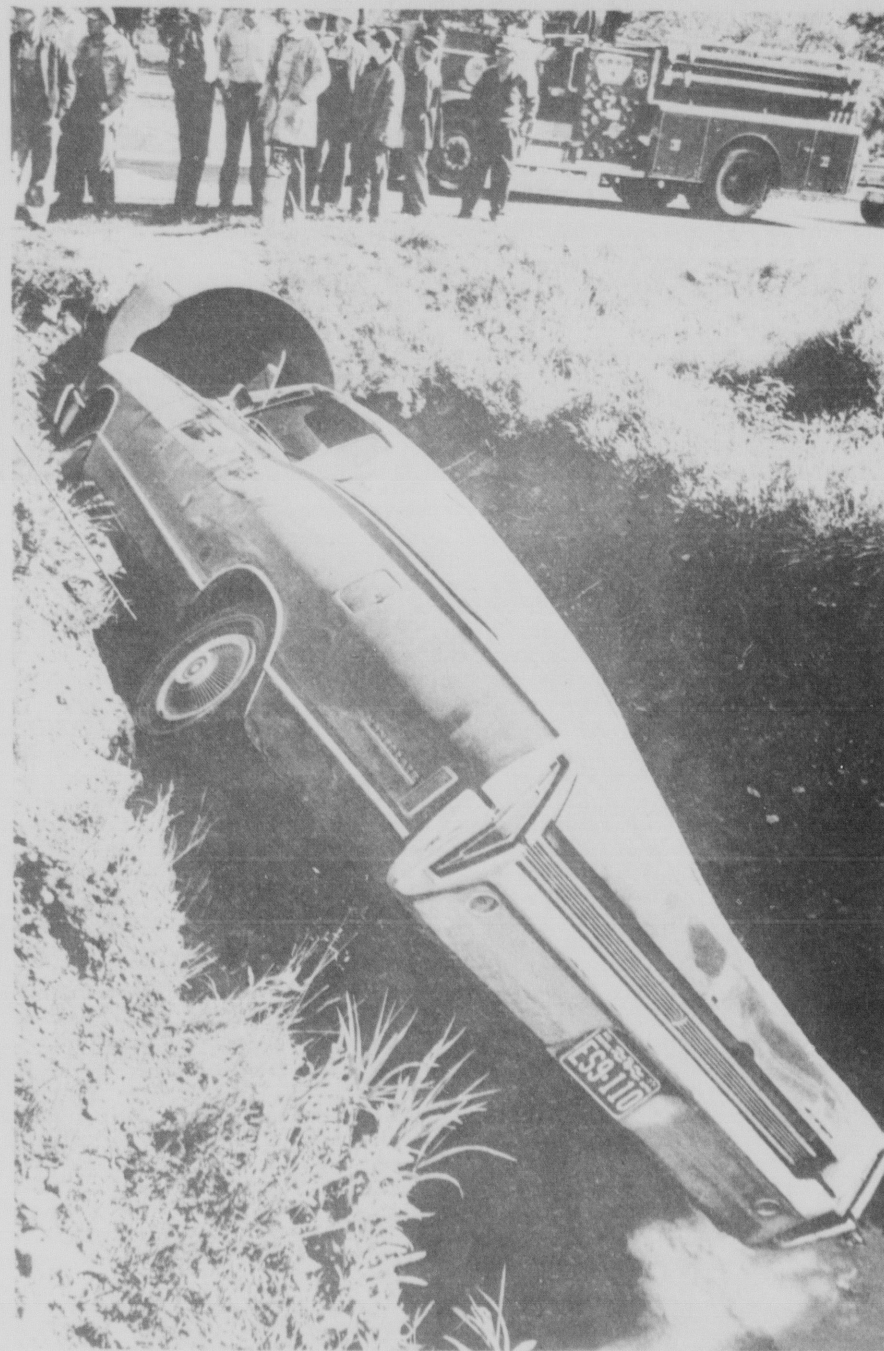

About 60 persons attended the meeting, and several spoke in favor of Hatfield. The crowd applauded and cheered when the application was finally denied. Hatfield's cabs had brought many people to the meeting to support his case.

Brown contended that Hatfield simply wanted to avoid competition, while Romines said that Hatfield's companies were struggling already, and that a new company might force both men out of business.

Fourth Ward Democrat David Curry told Hatfield he did not question the quality of his service, but would vote for Knapp simply because he felt the city should not be in the business of limiting the number of cab companies that can operate. Curry said public health and safety should be the City Council's only concern in such matters, and it should not "interfere with the free enterprise system."

In the end, the council voted 5-3 to deny the application. Hawkins, Bales and Curry voted in favor of granting the request.

Knapp can still appeal the decision to Circuit Court. When asked if an appeal would be made, Brown was noncommittal, saying the matter would be dealt with "at the proper time and in the proper manner."

Tight fit

Anyone who has ever driven next to a sewage ditch has had this nightmare and for Richard Thomas, 16, 808 East 19th, the nightmare became a reality Tuesday morning. Thomas was on his way to school when his car slipped off Washington at 26th and down into the ditch. Thomas was uninjured and it took two tow-trucks almost an hour to remove the car.

FEC's Curtis says he hasn't resigned

Former U.S. Rep. Thomas Curtis said here Tuesday he has not yet resigned as chairman of the Federal Election Commission (FEC) despite reports to the contrary.

Speaking at the Brookings Park Geriatric Center, Route 6, which he co-founded, Curtis did state, however, that he would not be a candidate for renomination to the commission if a proposed federal bill affecting the commission is passed and signed by President Ford.

Curtis said he feels the proposed revamping legislation, which would revive the commission's power to authorize primary subsidies, is bad "because it would undermine the independence of this commission and if the independence of this commission is undermined, I don't want to be a part of it."

The commission's authority to release federal elections funds for legitimate presidential candidates was frozen March 23 following an earlier Supreme Court decision this year. The proposed legislation is designed to allow the FEC to pass Supreme Court scrutiny.

Curtis has in the past indicated his dissatisfaction with congressional interference with the FEC and the Supreme Court ruling that invalidated the agency's authority.

If the FEC revamping proposal is passed and Curtis resigns, a Republican successor must be nominated and confirmed. This time-consuming process would delay the long-awaited resumption in distributing campaign funds.

Senate advances closer to free campaign funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senate leaders reached a compromise today to end a one-man filibuster and complete action on a bill that would free federal campaign funds for presidential candidates.

Sen. Lowell Weicker Jr., R-Conn., agreed to halt his filibuster after Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield scheduled a vote later today on a resolution expressing the sense of the Senate that there should be early votes on Weicker's demand for "real Watergate reforms."

A vote on the Federal Election Commission bill was scheduled to follow action on the resolution.

Completion of Senate action on the legislation will send it to the White House. President Ford has given no indication whether he will sign or veto the measure.

Meanwhile, presidential candidates filed requests with the election commission today for $1.36 million in matching campaign funds. That brings the total of requests pending before the agency to $3.76 million.

The latest biweekly submission of funding requests reaffirmed President Ford's campaign as the best financed. He received sufficient private contributions to ask for $498,546 in new matching money.

Delph succeeds Dey

Grant director named

Mayor Jerry Jones announced at Monday night's City Council meeting that Tom Delph, 45, Route 3, has been appointed administrator of the Community Block Grant program, succeeding Gary Dey, who resigned last month.

Because the position is federally funded, Delph is not subject to the city provision that most of its employees must reside within the city limits.

Delph has been a foreman in charge of the city's storm sewer and drainage ditch improvements. Delph's job will be filled by Ed Homan, who has assisted Delph in the project.

Before the meeting ended, Dey made some comments on three issues concerning the council and city government.

First he leveled criticism at councilmen who had questioned the expenditure of $25,000 for acquisition of land at the Sedalia Industrial Park. That expenditure was approved at the council's last meeting, but had been originally discussed when plans for the park were being developed.

The money was provided through block grant funds. The land will be used for streets, utilities and auxiliary uses.

Second Ward Democrat Raymond Bales and Third Ward Democrat Carl Franklin had questioned the expenditure and the source of the funds at the last meeting, but supported the expenditure after the funding was explained.

Dey said the councilmen had been told about the expenditure beforehand, and that there should have been no question about where the money was coming from. "There was really no reason why it should have been brought up," Dey said.

Dey then turned his attention to a proposed fair housing ordinance and City Counselor Bob Fritz.

The ordinance was discussed at a recent meeting of the Sedalia Human Rights Commission. The ordinance was drawn up by Fritz, but there was apparent confusion about who requested it.

Commission Chairman Dr. John Owens said the matter had been discussed with Fritz, but that a model ordinance had not been requested.

However, Fritz, contacted after the meeting, said Owens had asked him to draft an ordinance.

Dey said Monday night that the request was his and former Economic Development Director John Hequemborg's.

Dey said the request for drafting an ordinance was made because the Department of Housing and Urban Development demands that cities receiving federal funds show that they are making concrete efforts to eliminate discrimination.

Finally, Dey brought up an incident in which a city truck was involved in an accident with another vehicle recently. The driver of the city truck, it was discovered, had never in his life had a driver's license.

Dey said the city should take steps to see that department employees are not put in such a position again. He pointed out that the city risked the possibility of being sued by allowing an unlicensed driver to operate city vehicles.

The incident in question occurred at 10:27 a.m. April 8 and involved city sanitation department employee Daniel Hern II, 620 East 24th. A city truck driven east on Broadway by Hern collided with the rear of another east-bound vehicle that had stopped to turn left onto State Fair Blvd. The driver of the second vehicle, Nelson Hinken, 1404 South Madison, suffered injuries to his neck and shoulder, but was not hospitalized.

No citations were issued in connection with the accident. Hern was not cited for not having a driver's license on the provision he secure one immediately, which he did. City street

Community Center utilities

Council pays overdue bills

During its regular meeting Monday night, the City Council approved a $1,473.43 appropriation for the Sedalia Community Center to pay overdue utility bills.

The request for the money came from Tom McCully, chairman of the center's board of directors.

In a letter to Mayor Jerry Jones, McCully said that the utility expenses were the biggest budgetary problem at the center. He pointed out that utility costs doubled from 1974 to 1975, and were 20 to 30 per cent higher so far this year.

He also requested that the city include $12,000 in next year's budget to cover utility costs at the center. That request was taken under consideration.

The council also discussed a beautification project that would provide trees in the downtown area along Ohio Street. The project was developed by the Missouri Conservation Department, and presented to the council by Fourth Ward Democrat David Curry.

Under the plan, 20 trees would be planted at intervals along Ohio. The trees would be planted in the road where parking spaces are now located, thus eliminating 20 parking spaces, but not affecting the sidewalk area.

The trees would be bordered by an oval brick structure 15 feet long and 8 feet wide. The structure would not interfere with traffic, Curry said.

The city would provide equipment and some manpower for the project, but materials would be paid for by local businessmen.

Curry said he recently had discussed the matter with about nine downtown merchants and had received a favorable response.

The council agreed to let one location be used as a trial site, to see what the effects will be on traffic flow and street maintenance.

The trial site will be at Seventh and Ohio, with the Jaycees providing material and manpower. Some assistance will be provided by the city in cutting into the street.

Special Pulitzer award given in Joplin's honor

NEW YORK (AP) — A special Pulitzer award for contribution to American music was announced for Scott Joplin, the former Sedalian and one-time "King of Ragtime," who died penniless 59 years ago.

The award will be sent to one of Joplin's surviving relatives, Mrs. Mary L. Wormley, in care of her attorney, Robert Rosborne, New York. Mrs. Wormley's address is not known.

The award was inscribed: "A special award is bestowed posthumously on Scott Joplin in his bicentennial year for his contributions to American music." No other reason was given by the committee.

In other awards, author Saul Bellow won the 1976 Pulitzer prize for fiction with "Humboldt's Gift," a novel whose characters speak of the revered award with utter disdain.

"I'm very delighted," said Bellow, 60, a faculty member of the University of Chicago who has been passed over four previous times for the prize.

Gene Miller of the Miami Herald won a Pulitzer for news reporting, and author Paul Horgan was honored in the history category — the second time each won prizes.

The Anchorage Daily News, which has a staff of 20 and a circulation of 16,500, won the gold medal for public service for its investigation into the Teamsters union's growing impact on Alaska's economy and politics.

The prize for special local reporting went to the staff of the Chicago Tribune for uncovering widespread abuses in federal housing programs in Chicago.

In the field of drama, the Broadway hit "A Chorus Line" won a Pulitzer. The musical, created and directed by Michael Bennett, recently received a Tony award for best musical of the year.

Sydney H. Schanberg of The New York Times won the international reporting prize for his coverage "at great risk" of the Communist takeover of Cambodia and the uprooting of its people. Schanberg remained behind in the Cambodian capital after the government's surrender.

The prize for national reporting went to Des Moines Register reporter James Risher, a lawyer, for his exposure of a major scandal in the U.S. export trade.

The 11 journalism and seven other prizes in letters, drama and music were announced Monday by Columbia University, on the recommendations of an advisory board.

Endowed by the late publisher Joseph Pulitzer, the prizes were awarded first in 1917. They carry a $1,000 prize for each winner, with the exception that the newspaper winning the public service award gets a gold medal.

Arab charges to be aired at U.N. today

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The U.N. Security Council begins debate this afternoon on Egyptian charges that Israel is waging a "violent terrorist campaign" against the Arabs in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip.

The council met behind closed doors this morning and agreed to convene a public meeting at 3:30 p.m. EDT. Both Israel and the Palestine Liberation Organization are expected to participate in the debate.

Egypt asked the council Monday for an urgent meeting and also requested that the Palestine Liberation Organization take part in the debate.

Observers at U.N. headquarters considered the Egyptian request an attempt to make anti-Israeli propaganda on the Jewish nation's independence day, which begins at 8 p.m. Israel time.

The Israelis at U.N. headquarters had no immediate comment on the Egyptian charges.

All but 5 states fail to qualify for funds

WASHINGTON (AP) — Forty-five states face the loss of $123.4 million in federal matching funds this fall because they have failed to meet a goal for reducing errors in the nation's major family welfare program, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare says.

HEW says its four-year campaign to weed out ineligible and overpaid recipients from welfare rolls has saved federal and state taxpayers an estimated $950 million.

But HEW officials told Congress on Monday that only five states met the federal goal of reducing errors in the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program by the end of last year. The other 45 states and the District of Columbia failed to reach the goal and are scheduled to lose $123.4 million in federal matching funds.

William A. Morrill, HEW's

assistant secretary for planning and evaluation, said the proposed penalties are being discussed in a series of meetings between HEW and state officials.

There has been widespread speculation that HEW will not proceed with its plans to levy penalties next Oct. 1 and Jan. 1.

Rep. Charles A. Vanik, D-Ohio, chairman of the House ways and means oversight subcommittee, told the HEW officials that "your error reduction programs are not working. We are meeting today because you continue to claim enormous savings in your quality control program, yet evidence has been presented that the savings are grossly exaggerated and perhaps even nonexistent."

Morrill said AFDC error rates have dropped to 26 per cent from 41 per cent in 1972

Women's caucus wins at Methodist meeting

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — The "yellow ribbon" crusaders have won their first round at the United Methodist governing convention, gaining authorization of a regular unit to defend "full and equal" rights for women in the church.

Among duties spelled out for the special commission are developing means for "elimination of sexism in all its manifestations" from the church and seeing that women share "fully in power and in policy-making."

Approval for a long-range functioning of the commission, previously set up only on a temporary basis, had been a key objective of a women's caucus, whose emblem is the yellow ribbon. The ribbon was a mark of the women's suffrage movement at the turn of the century.

Representatives of the 10 million-member denomination voted late Monday to make the commission an official continuing arm of the church, with a projected budget of $200,000 annually.

Its specified job includes gathering data and formulating strategies to "eradicate discriminatory" practices and language in the church and to recruit, train and utilize women fully in the church's staff and ministry.

The convention includes about 200 women among the 984 voting delegates, 60 per cent more than at the last convention four years ago, and for the first time, women clergy — 12 of them. The church has about 600 ordained women among its 35,000 clergy.

The 12-day convention, which ends Saturday, also:

- Gave its 100 bishops additional power in overseeing national denominational policies. A change was made in the Book of Discipline providing that any emergency shifts in church priorities made between quadrennial conventions require not only a two-thirds vote by a Council on Ministries as in the past, but also by two-thirds of the bishops.
- Called for removal of felony penalties for possession of JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A court reform measure approved by the legislature in the final hours of the session received the support of the Board of Governors of the Missouri Bar Monday.

The board, in a special meeting to discuss the legislative approved measure, voted to support the constitutional amendment and withdraw its own initiative petition drive for a similar plan.

"We believe that the action of the proposed amendment shows recognition of the pressing need to modernize our court system.

We urge the voters to adopt the legislative proposal in the general election in November," said Thomas Cochran, president of the Missouri Bar.

The bar has worked on a revision plan over the past decade, but when the legislature failed to act on a reform proposal prior to this year, the bar began a drive to put its own proposition on the ballot.

With the passage of the legislative proposal, board members decided any efforts to put a second, similar measure on the November ballot would be too confusing to the public.

The legislative proposal, while it didn't contain all the changes the Bar had hoped for, was termed a "big step forward" and included many basic changes necessary to court reform.

The main difference between the two proposals is the legislative one does not require municipal judges to have legal training. The Bar had hoped to require legal training for all judges.

"We cannot attack it as being bad legislation, and the only criticism is it doesn't go far enough," said John Gibson of Kansas City. "It's better than I thought we'd see from the legislature."

The majority of the board wanted to draft a "laudatory" statement of support for the legislature to ensure a good relationship between the bar and the general assembly. Several members said they hoped to introduce several changes in the proposal at a later date.

But Cochran was more critical of the legislature saying the session negotiations on the proposal centered more on how the proposal "effected their legislative perogatives rather than improvement in the quality of justice."

Cochran also said the threat of the initiative petition drive sponsored by the bar helped passage of the legislative proposal.

The reform measure revamps the entire court system creating a three-tiered structure, eliminating magistrate and probate courts. Magistrate judges would become associate circuit court judges under the plan, which will go into effect in January, 1979, if approved by the voters.

Expansion of the nonpartisan court plan to include magistrates in areas which already have is also in the proposal. The nonpartisan plan provides a system under which judges are appointed by a judicial commission and the governor rather than by election of the people.

Board members said they believed the League of Women Voters and the Missouri Attorney's Association would support the Bar's decision to back the legislative measure in the upcoming election.

Butz: plenty grain on hand

By DON KENDALL
AP Farm Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz says there is plenty of grain on hand to sell more to the Soviet Union and other countries. But a report prepared for Congress says that if much more is sold this season, consumers will see a significant rise in food prices.

The Russians have bought 16.2 million metric tons of corn and wheat from the 1975 U.S. crop and may want more to tide them over until a new five-year agreement takes effect, with deliveries beginning Oct. 1. Butz said Monday there is "a likely prospect" more will be sold.

Butz also predicted that retail food prices will go up only 3 to 4 per cent this year, regardless of the Russian grain sales. That would be less than one-half the 8.5 per cent gain of 1975 and far below the jumps of 14.5 per cent in each of the two previous years. According to USDA records, a food-price increase of 3 to 4 per cent would be the smallest since a gain of 3 per cent in 1971.

Total grain exports, including wheat, corn and other feed grains are expected to be a record of about 80 million tons in the 1975-76 season. A metric ton is 2,205 pounds.

The Congressional Budget Office said in a report Monday that if grain exports were increased by 10 million tons from previous expectations — about 13 per cent from what USDA has been saying — consumers might see a 1 per cent boost in food prices within a year, meaning an increase on top of what might otherwise occur.

"Consumers would have to pay higher food prices, yet they would also benefit from improved accessibility to foreign products," the report said. "Farmers who raise crops would benefit from higher incomes, while the incomes of those raising livestock would eventually fall."

But the reports said, "There is no attempt to conclude whether an increase in grain exports to the Soviet Union or to other countries is on balance 'good' or 'bad.'"

Even counting the new agreement, which calls for Russia to buy six million to eight million tons of corn and wheat annually and more if the two countries agree, the department says tentatively that grain exports are likely to decline next season.

Thus, according to USDA, even if the Russians buy more grain than appears the case now, there is a good chance U.S. grain reserves will build up by the time 1977 crops are ready if farmers get normal growing weather over the next few months and harvest bumper 1976 crops.

Scabies confirmed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Five outbreaks of cattle scabies, a skin disease caused by mites, were confirmed last month in California and New Mexico, according to the Agriculture Department.

The April outbreaks raised to 76 the number of scabies cases reported nationally since last July 1, officials said Monday. A year earlier the total was 45 cases for a comparable 10-month period.

When the disease is detected, state or federal quarantines are imposed and infected cattle must be treated with pesticides to free them of mites before they can be shipped from an infested area.

Security plan

WASHINGTON (AP) — A new security plan designed to combat bomb threats, thievery and other mischief was imposed Monday at the Agriculture Department. The crackdown included mandatory identification of employees and visitors as they entered the agency's building complex here. The rules also applied to Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz.

Buckley's mother honored by school

NEW YORK (AP) — Aloise Buckley, 81-year-old mother of Sen. James L. Buckley, R-C-N.Y., and columnist William F. Buckley Jr., has been honored by the school of the Convent of the Sacred Heart in commemoration of the school's founding 175 years ago.

Trend toward restriction

'Great Writ' curbed by court

WASHINGTON (AP) — It is called the "Great Writ."

Its legal name is habeas corpus, a Latin phrase that roughly translates to "produce the body." Thousands of prisoners use it every year to try to get out of prison. And now the Supreme Court is showing signs of cutting back on its use.

The most recent evidence of that trend came Monday as the court rejected the appeal of a Louisiana black man seeking release from life in prison for a murder committed when he was 16.

A writ of habeas corpus is a court order to authorities such as prison wardens to either release a prisoner or grant him a new trial.

Since 1867, just after the Civil War, federal courts have been empowered by Congress to issue such orders to state prison officials. Under a series of Supreme Court rulings in the 1950s and the 1960s, the scope of the power was broadened greatly.

"Its root principle is that in a civilized society, government must always be accountable to the judiciary for a man's imprisonment," the court said in 1963. "If the imprisonment cannot be shown to conform with the fundamental requirements of law, the individual is entitled to his immediate release."

Under this reasoning, the justices authorized federal courts to free prisoners on the basis of complaints about coerced confessions, jury discrimination, lack of defense counsel, illegally seized evidence and other grievances. By 1974, the number of such complaints filed in federal courts by state prisoners had reached more than 7, 000 a year.

In a case three years ago, four of the court's present nine justices indicated they thought it was time to reverse the trend. One of the four, Justice Lewis F. Powell, said federal judges should not consider unlawful evidence claims if the prisoner had a fair chance to present them in state courts. The court currently is reviewing that issue.

Meanwhile, the justices have adopted new rules, subject to congressional approval, which would restrict the unlimited privilege of inmates to file habeas corpus petitions as often as they wish.

And in Monday's 6 to 1 ruling, they curbed the right to challenge the composition of grand juries by such petitions.

saying this can be done only if the prisoner raised the issue at his trial.

The prisoner, Abraham Francis, asked the court to overturn his murder conviction and life term on grounds that blacks were underrepresented on grand juries by a system which excluded day laborers.

It was this claim which the Supreme Court said Monday should either have been raised at his trial or not at all.

Dissenting Justice William J. Brennan Jr. said the decision weakened, if not completely overturned, a 1963 Supreme Court ruling that only prisoners who "deliberately bypass" state court procedures could be prevented from making their constitutional claims.

Only one day suitable for work in fields

COLUMBIA, Mo. (AP) — Only one day was suitable for field work last week, the Missouri Crop and Livestock Reporting Service said Monday.

Wet fields hampered plowing except in the east and Bootheel areas, with 94 per cent of the work now complete. This is up one point from the previous week and two weeks ahead of normal.

Soil moisture is reported six per cent short, 74 per cent adequate and 20 per cent surplus. Fertilizers and fuel supplies are adequate.

The service said corn planting is now 53 per cent complete, up 10 points from the previous week and two weeks ahead of normal.

Cotton planting in the Bootheel increased at a rapid rate, with 50 per cent now completed, up 24 points from the previous week and nine days ahead of normal.

Grain sorghum planting is 12 per cent complete, up five points from the previous week and one week ahead of normal.

Malpractice claims shifting, report says

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Diagnostic error, rather than leaving a sponge or a pair of scissors in a patient's body, is now the leading cause of medical malpractice claims, an association of insurance commissioners said Monday.

The National Association of Insurance Commissioners also reported that highly trained, hospital-based specialists, not ill-trained foreign doctors, are the main source of malpractice claims.

The report noted in addition that 63 per cent of the $105 million paid out in medical malpractice claims during a recent seven-month period went to 3 per cent of the claimants.

"In previous years, most of the claims were for technical errors," such as sponges, scissors or other surgical equipment left in a patient's body after an operation, said Dr.

William Nick, a surgeon and lawyer who serves as the association's malpractice consultant.

"What we've seen is a shift where claims are for diagnostic errors or errors in planning treatment," Nick said. "The most common single injury is a diagnostic error."

Nick predicted that in the future physicians would place higher value on maintaining medical history records and would require more extensive studies before beginning treatment.

"This may entail a higher cost to consumers," he said.

The association said medical malpractice claims paid in the United States totaled $105 million between July 1975 and February 1976, the payments going to about one-third of total cases closed during the period.

Mathewson critical of Senate action

Commenting on the recent defeat of his proposal to increase the gate price at the Missouri State Fair from $1 to $1.50 for persons 6 and over, State Rep. James Mathewson chided the Senate for blocking the bill.

Noting several senators "always make a big deal about getting the Fair to be self-supporting," Mathewson said, "Well, we gave the Senate a chance to let the Fair head more in this direction, but they didn't want to do it."

Fair Director Jerry Hermann said Monday that, based on 1975 attendance figures, passage of the measure would have meant an additional $100,000 in revenue this year.

The bill passed easily in the House, but in the Senate an amendment was added stipulating that persons 65 and over would be admitted free. The House then rejected the bill, Mathewson said, "because of the difficulty in enforcing the amendment."

Hermann said he was "very disappointed" about the defeat of the proposal. "We're going to try to get the legislature to reconsider it next year," he added.

Crash kills about 20

ROTTERDAM, The Netherlands (AP) — The Rhine Express and a Dutch commuter train collided head-on near Rotterdam Tuesday, killing about 20 persons, a spokesman for the Dutch railroad system said.

Police said most of the victims were in the front coach of the Dutch train and added that some children were aboard.

It was not known if children were among the casualties.

The number of injured was also not known immediately.

A second local train traveling alongside the Rhine Express was slightly damaged when the express derailed and hit it, the spokesman said.

Officials could not explain why the two trains were on the same track.

Dutch Transport Minister Tjerk Westerterp hurried to the scene of the wreck.

I get very choked up about the 100th anniversary of the telephone. One hates to be dramatic, but sever my phone cord and I bleed to death.

There is only one thing that has always bothered me about this invention and that is the classic story of the transmission of sound.

The one where Alexander Graham Bell accidentally spills battery acid on himself and says clearly into the receiver, "Mr. Watson, come here. I want you."

Has the absurdity of this remark never struck you?

"Mr. Watson, come here. I want you." I've become more emotional than that when I've gotten fingernail polish on my cuticle. Naturally, I am not at liberty to divulge my "reliable source," but it seems there exists 18½ minutes of missing tape of that historic conversation between Mr. Bell and Mr. Watson that has just been uncovered. Here is a part of it.

Bell, the inventor, was indeed in another room when the acid spilled over his clothes. Opening the key to the transmitter, he said, "Watson, come here I want you."

Mechanically, Watson replied, "What city, please?"

"BOSTON! For crying out loud! Watson, do you hear me?"

"Is Watson the first or the last name of the party you wish to speak to?"

"For God's sake, Tom!" shouted Bell.

"We have two listings for a Thomas Watson. If you'd care to make a note of them, one is a local exchange: 555-0099, the other is a toll at KL5-6666."

"I want the Thomas Watson in the next room."

"Sir, may I suggest that you do not need directory assistance? If you dial direct after 4 p.m. and on weekends you can save money. You may also call anywhere, excluding Alaska and Hawaii which haven't been discovered yet, for a mere pittance."

"Look Tom, this is Alex and you know that (deleted expletive) battery acid I told you to put away last night when we left the office before someone hurt themselves? Well, thanks to you — breath failure — the (deleted expletive) just ate through my one-pants suit. Now, I would suggest that unless you want your face rearranged, you get your (deleted expletive) bones in here and get me a doctor!" (Much heavy breathing.)

Thus, in a small laboratory in Boston in 1876, the first obscene phone call was born.

Doesn't it make you feel all mushy inside knowing there are some things that last?

Pension obligations a 'fiscal time bomb'

WASHINGTON (AP) — The future retirement of millions of municipal employees is a "fiscal time bomb" for many American cities that do not know or fail to disclose the amount of money they eventually will have to pay for pensions, a study of city accounting methods says.

The study of 43 of the nation's largest cities said "millions of taxpayers are being kept in the dark because some cities just don't know, or don't disclose, their unfunded pension obligations."

A preliminary portion of the study, conducted by Earl Keller of the University of Michigan and Robert Cockrill of the accounting firm of Coopers & Lybrand, was released Monday.

"These debts represent a fiscal time bomb that is ticking away at the fiscal integrity of many of our cities. And many cities do not know when the time bomb will go off," the study said. "If local control is to be preserved, cities must vastly improve their present fiscal management practices."

The undisclosed retirement obligations mean "taxpayers are not aware that they will have to make up the dollars that must be paid into pension funds in the future to provide for the benefits of retired employees," the report said. "These dollar amounts are staggering."

Unfunded pensions are not financed through regular fund investments during a worker's employment but are paid out of general revenues when the employee retires.

The report said only eight of the 43 cities received an auditor's report that did not take exception to their reporting of financial conditions and obligations. They are Austin, Fort Worth and Corpus Christi, Tex.; Birmingham, Ala.; Chicago; Phoenix, Ariz.; St. Petersburg, Fla.; and Wichita, Kan.

The report also found that 16 of the cities do not disclose unfunded obligations for anticipated retirement benefits and only seven cities disclose their total dollar obligations for employee vacations and sick leave. These are Honolulu; Phoenix and Tucson, Ariz.; Oakland, San Jose and Sacramento, Calif.; and Portland, Ore.

It said 17 don't list in annual reports a debt incurred by taxing agencies other than the city but which are paid by city taxpayers, almost 30 per cent do not maintain adequate records to safeguard assets such as land, buildings and equipment, and only 26 of the cities have their financial statements audited by a certified public accountant.

The report said unfunded pension liabilities often exceed $100 million and in some instances hit $1 billion. It said the 16 cities that fail to disclose such debts are Akron, Toledo, Cincinnati and Dayton, Ohio; Chicago; Boston; Corpus Christi, Tex.; Des Moines, Iowa; Honolulu; Indianapolis; Long Beach, Calif.; Pittsburgh; St. Paul, Seattle; Tucson, Ariz.; and Portland, Ore.

Van strikes truck; Kansas teen killed

GRANDVIEW, Mo. (AP) — An Olathe, Kan., teenager was killed Monday when a delivery van struck a Missouri Highway Department truck on U.S. 71 here.

Billy J. Houston, 18, the driver of the van, was pronounced dead at a Kansas City hospital.

The slow moving highway department truck was being used to detour traffic around a grader working on the median strip of the highway, a spokesman said.

On March 9, 1864, Gen. Ulysses S. Grant was made commander-in-chief of the Union armies.

Jazz piano treat heard

By DOUG KNEIBERT

Jazz piano, mainly in the modern vein, was the featured attraction at Monday night's final concert by the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra.

Bob James, a Marshall native who now lives and works in New York, was the guest artist. An arranger and composer as well as performer, James gave his audience a sampling of all his skills.

Playing after the intermission either in solo or together with strings and percussion of the orchestra, and alternating between a conventional and an electric piano, James demonstrated his contemporary approach to jazz.

In "Gymnopédie," a lovely composition by the avant-garde French composer Eric Satie, James gave a sensitive reading to this early Debussy-like pre-jazz composition. The orchestra musicians, under the direction of Abe Rosenthal, blended well on the number. Dave Turner and Eric Hale provided special guitar accompaniment.

In a solo medley, James played a sampling of jazz modes, starting with Joplin's "Maple Leaf Rag." Another standout here was "Jitterbug Waltz," a marvelous Fats Waller number. Among other selections played by James was "In the Garden," his modern rendering of a classical German composition. James and the orchestra did a good job of developing the theme in a subdued jazz style.

James' composing skills were evident in his encore selection, "The Chicago Theme." His solo rendering of the intricate harmonies of the piece showed that James is a well-rounded and thoughtful musician.

The Sedalia Symphony Orchestra opened the concert with the Overture to Rienzi, by Richard Wagner. The orchestra did a generally good job on this dramatic and expansive work, although the absence of several musicians put it well below normal strength.

Especially good was the second selection, ballet music from Faust, by Gounod. Rosenthal led the orchestra through the various moods and tempos of the music with ease and command.

The orchestra closed its portion of the program with themes from "Song of Norway," by Wright and Forrest.

Airport board appeals ruling

The Sedalia Airport Board voted Monday night to appeal a Federal Energy Administration (FEA) ruling that requires the airport to charge 72 cents per gallon for gasoline, 2 cents less than before.

The board wants to hike the price of gasoline at its pumps by 4 cents.

According to Jim Abbas, airport manager, the FEA audited the airport recently and determined that it has been overcharging gas customers by 2 cents per gallon. To make amends for this error, the FEA ruled the airport would have to drop fuel prices 2 cents or pay a fine.

Abbas told The Democrat-Capital that the over-charge resulted because at least as far back as 1972 the airport rounded the price of gas per gallon to the largest whole number. This rounding amounted to the overcharge.

Sedalia currently charges 72 cents per gallon for gas. According to Abbas, gas prices at other Missouri airports range from 72 to 81 cents per gallon. He added that the airport needs to charge more to help support the cost of operation. Such an argument will be the basis of the board's appeal action.

The board also elected new officers and approved a budget to be submitted to the City Council.

Lou Tempel declined an attempt to renominate him as chairman, saying his two terms were enough and that "it's time for new blood." The new blood came in the form of D. R. Landwehr, 1505 West Third, treasurer of Industrial Loan and Investment Co. Bill Burkholder, chairman before Tempel, was elected vice-chairman, and Floyd Pugh was elected secretary-treasurer.

A proposed budget of $19,875 for fiscal 1976 was approved.

However, the budget is not complete due to the lack of compilation of employee salaries, payroll taxes, employee insurance and workman's compensation payments. Last year $19,655 in such fees were approved by the council. If that figure holds true for fiscal 1976, the total budget would amount to just under $40,000.

The board voted to request $5,000 in the new budget for new equipment. This is a $1,500 jump from last year's request. The hike is required by the board's plan to purchase a truck for jet fuel.

According to board members, jet fuel and gas used by propeller aircraft cannot be transported in the same vehicles.

Normally a jet fuel truck would cost about $15,000, according to board members. However, the board plans to purchase a used gas truck, have it purged (steam cleaned) and use it to carry jet fuel at a considerable saving.

In other board action, Tempel announced that approximately $23,000 would be returned to the city as a result of profits from the airport's sale of oil and gasoline.

Three hangars have reverted back to the city, according to the board. The hangars were constructed with a leasing agreement that stipulated that after a designated period the hangars would become the property of the city. The hangars reverted back to the city in December, but this fact went unnoticed until Monday. The board will examine the hangars to determine if improvements are needed and whether to raise the rental fees.

Placement of a hangar for Pat O'Conner was approved. O'Conner will build his hangar just north of the present Civil Air Patrol building at the airport.

Atkins has no doubt Webb her assailant

CALIFORNIA, Mo. (AP) — Carolyn Atkins, former superintendent of the state Correctional Center for Women who was seriously stabbed last fall, says there is no doubt in her mind that an inmate at the facility was her attacker.

"Kathy Webb came through the door with a cane in her hand," Mrs. Atkins testified Monday in opening the prosecution's case against Miss Webb, 34, on a charge of assault with intent to kill.

"She hit me first with the cane. I backed back and then she started stabbing at me," said Mrs. Atkins, 45, who was stabbed at least nine times with a nine-inch knife as she entered her home across from the prison at Tipton on Sept. 18.

Prosecutor Clarence Hawk, who noted that four of the wounds are "commonly regarded by the medical profession as fatal," said the evidence would show that Miss Webb, who had been serving a 25-year term for robbery, was guilty of assault with intent to kill in the stabbing.

A Gary Schmidt, Miss Webb's attorney, waived an opening statement Monday, planning to outline his case after the prosecution completes its full presentation, probably sometime today.

The trial is expected to last into Wednesday, with the jury of 10 men and two women along with one woman alternate juror being sequestered through the course of the trial. That means they are not permitted to go home in the evenings or associate with friends and relatives.

Donald Hicks, then a corrections system inmate assigned to Tipton and now on parole, recounted how he heard Mrs. Atkins scream, saw her stabbed three times and finally captured the person who wielded the knife.

After grabbing the assailant, Hicks said he pulled the nylon stocking from her head and recognized Kathy Webb.

A subdued Mrs. Atkins under went more than an hour of testimony Monday, much of it repetitious of testimony presented at a January preliminary hearing when Miss Webb was ordered to stand trial on the charge.

Mrs. Atkins told the jury that while her attacker wore a black nylon stocking over her head, she knew it was Miss Webb.

"I had known her some months," said Mrs. Atkins, who acknowledged that the relationship with the inmate up to the stabbing had been "cordial" rather than friendly. "I knew her on sight and I could recognize her features (beneath the stocking)."

After being hit with the cane, Mrs. Atkins said she moved away and her attacker began stabbing her.

"I fell on my stomach and I could feel the stab wounds in my back," said Mrs. Atkins, who was transferred to a central administrative post after returning to work in March although she remains under a doctor's care for the wounds. "I knew the knife was still in me."

Donald Hicks, then a corrections system inmate assigned to Tipton and now on parole, recounted how he heard Mrs. Atkins scream, saw her stabbed three times and finally captured the person who wielded the knife.

After grabbing the assailant, Hicks said he pulled the nylon stocking from her head and recognized Kathy Webb.

superintendent Vernon Ditton said Hern, who was employed by the city under a federal program last fall, had been assigned to load refuse onto garbage trucks and not to operate vehicles. However, Ditton explained, a sudden shortage of manpower April 8 prompted the decision to let Hern drive a city truck.

"I always check my drivers, that is just a matter of policy," Ditton explained. "But in this case, we needed somebody in a hurry and we were short on men. I just took him at his word that he had a license."

After the accident, Hern was fired. However, Ditton said, Hern was later re-hired at the suggestion of his former immediate supervisor.

WARRENSBURG — A Bicentennial wagon train, made up of residents of Henry and Johnson Counties is making its way from Lowry City to the Saddle and Bridle Club Grounds on the west edge of Warrensburg.

The train is scheduled to be here at 6 p.m. Wednesday for a barbecue, which is open to the public. Old-fashioned entertainment will also be presented during the Wednesday evening stop-over.

The wagon train is on its way to meet the National Bicentennial Wagon Train, which is due to be in Lexington Saturday and Sunday.

Part II: American women

Women find money, ulcers in management

By VICTORIA GRAHAM
Associated Press Writer

"I make money. Or I'm counting it."

"I have a total commitment to what I do, and I'm happiest when I'm in this office creating more business," says Marilyn E. LaMarche, vice president of New York City's First National City Bank in the investment division.

Ms. LaMarche, who prefers that title, is one of a small but growing number of women in management and an even smaller number of women in senior management.

"I work from 8:30 in the morning to 9:30 at night. I work six days a week and spend weekends cultivating new customers," says Ms. LaMarche who shares with other highly successful men and women a high level of energy, dedication and sacrifice.

Her devotion to the bottom line has earned her the nickname "Net Net."

According to a recently released U.S. Census Bureau report on the status of women, the number of women managers and administrators increased by about 22 per cent from 1960 to 1970. But there were still about five times as many men as women in managerial positions.

The whys are much discussed: discrimination by men, complacency of women, lack of qualified women entering business, lack of seasoned women already in the management pipeline.

"Women are not risk-takers and not willing to give up a lot of social and personal life," says Ms. LaMarche, who gives her age as between 29 and 50. "The things you have to sacrifice are the things most normal people enjoy. ... It would be terrible to give up those things, make those sacrifices and only end up in middle management."

"The top guns in the corporation are really in favor of women in senior management," she says, "but there's a certain group of men who still cannot stomach the aggressive woman."

With some bitterness she notes, "When a man is aggressive, ambitious and driving, it is considered a fine thing, but when a woman is, it is considered unattractive."

"I'm not going to be stomped on or pushed around," says Ms. LaMarche.

Max Ulrich, president of Ward Howell Associates, an executive recruiting firm in New York, says there usually is a 15-to 20-year "incubation" period in developing an executive.

"When you ask why we don't have more women in top positions, the reason is basically that they were not introduced in sufficient numbers 20 years ago to enable them to work up."

John Barch, director of admissions at the Columbia University School of Business, says the number of women enrolled has increased from 6 per cent in 1971 to 35 per cent this year.

He says women MBAs do at least as well as men in getting jobs.

The National Organization for Women (NOW) says that discrimination still exists against women.

"There is still an enormous amount of tokenism," says Lynn Darcy, coordinator of NOW's employment compliance task force.

Companies often scrutinize a woman's qualifications far more than a man's, she says.

"I have a love-hate relationship with the business world," says Faye Whitfield, 25, a black stockbroker who was recruited and trained by a major brokerage firm.

"I don't think most women are prepared for the constant pressure, and I think they have a rough time emotionally dealing in business," says Ms. Whitfield, who prefers that title.

"I was rarely ill," she says, "but now I have an ulcer."

Ms. Whitfield believes management positions would be open to her.

"But you have to give so much," she says, "and it doesn't appear that your male counterpart has to give so much."

"I want a good career," she says. "But I also want to go home and chit-chat with my husband about nothing and fix a nice dinner."

"Once I prove to myself that I do the job as well or better than the next man, then I can leave," she says.

Margot Caruso has struck a balance between her life as a mother and her life as a market manager in petroleum processing in New York for Union Carbide. The job was traditionally handled by men.

Margot, 32, who prefers her first name in lieu of courtesy titles, describes her work as exciting and herself as "ambitious, a perfectionist, a competitor."

She says she is tired of clichés about the assertive woman and the business world.

"If I have something to say, I speak up. I stand my ground if I'm right," she says. "Essentially, I'm open enough to talk, and so are the men I work with."

"If women can't hold on for the growing pains, maybe they shouldn't be there."

Her work takes her on trips about 40 per cent of the time. She frequently works one evening a week and half a day on weekends.

A live-in babysitter helps Margot, who is divorced, care for her two children.

Polly's pointers

Delicate fabrics need pro care

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY — Fine chain necklaces are fashionable but frustrating when they knot. I put a drop or two of salad oil on a piece of waxed paper and lay the knot in the oil. Then I pick at it with two straight pins. The knot comes apart quickly. Wipe all the oil off the chain.

Hands that have picked up the strong odor of fish, garlic, onions, etc. can be deodorized with a vigorous rubbing with damp baking soda and salt. Rinse and wash with soap. Campers who have no soda could use toothpaste.

When washing windows, either in the house or car, use up and down strokes on one side and side to side strokes on the other. If there are any streaks left you can tell where they are. — DIANA

Polly's problem

DEAR POLLY — My baby is teething and slobbered on a green cushion that looks like it's made of a satin and silk drapery material, but I am sure it has rayon in it. Do you know how I can remove the saliva stains? — B.A.S.

DEAR B.A.S. — I know of no specific remedy for saliva stains and it would make a difference if baby had recently had milk, etc. You should take your cushion to a dry cleaner since the fabric is doubtless not a washable one and could not take a stain removal treatment, such as one uses before laundering. — POLLY.

Exercise and eat sensibly to maintain overall health

By GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Newfeature Writer

Regular daily exercise, intelligently planned, helps maintain your health. No argument about that.

But your exercises are far from being enough to maintain your overall health. You must eat a sensible diet — not a crank diet or an inadequate one. You must be able to sleep well; be able to face many of the crisis problems of today; get some fun out of life; stop cigarette smoking, if possible, and make certain you get a regular physical examination.

As valuable as exercise is to your general health, you also should make sure the other requirements of a good health program are followed, too. In that way, you may win 100 per cent achievement.

Man is a complex mechanism, a creature of many inter-related parts. But learn what parts need particular attention in your personal routine.

Believe it or not, a daily walk is regarded by many experts as one of the best physical exercises around.

To guide its members, the American Medical Association has a new booklet. It is called "Guide to Physicians in Prescribing Exercise Programs." Though written expressly for doctors, here are a few of its instructions which the layman can follow safely:

Exercise should be done with full, rhythmic movements rather than the staccato, jerky activity of military calisthenics.

Do no more than 10 to 15 consecutive repetitions of an exercise affecting one particular muscle group.

Allow for brief slowdown periods during the exercise program, especially at the beginning. (This is important).

Include exercises that strengthen the abdominal muscles, often the weakest muscles of the body.

Work on your poorest and weakest areas to improve through training. (Highly important to remember).

Build better heart and lung action by long continued activity involving many repetitions performed at low intensity.

Relate exercises one to the other. Avoid changing too quickly into completely different movements.

The important cautions of exercising include:

Use isometric exercises with great caution. Don't hold your breath. (Many physicians have doubts about isometric exercises).

Don't warm up too fast. Take it slow at first.

Don't work out on hard floors without protection. Use floor mats. If they're not available, be careful of kneeling exercises and spine-rolling. Hip pain is a common complaint when mats are not used.

Never bounce on tight ligaments.

Avoid excessive repetition of an exercise, so that no one muscle group is overworked.

Do not use exercise gadgets or machines for warmups. Use calisthenics.

Avoid alcoholic beverages for two to three hours prior to the workout.

Keep in mind that the purpose of limbering, flexibility-type exercises is to change gradually the body functions from rest to an active exercise status.

On a workable weight control program, remember that exercise is only one part of total health care.

Tyranny in India works like others

Americans, who live in the oldest major democracy in the world and one of the last few still in working order, have always been strangely fascinated by tyranny. Maybe it's because tyrannies are so — well, "efficient."

In the 1930s, Charles Lindbergh, who should have known something about the indomitableness of the human spirit, advised Britain and France that they could not hope to win a war against resurgent Germany under the Nazis.

A decade earlier, journalist and social reformer Lincoln Steffens had visited the Soviet Union and returned saying, "I have seen the future and it works."

Now another American has returned from another budding tyranny, that of Indian Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, and reports that he has seen the present and it is working in India — except for a few intellectuals, newspaper editors, opposition politicians and other dissenters who have borne the brunt of her "emergency" crackdown.

Even though foreign critics have called Mrs. Gandhi a dictator, "there is little doubt that the concept of the emergency has gained public acceptance in India," says Francis R. Valeo, Asian affairs expert and secretary of the U. S. Senate, who traveled recently on a fact-finding mission to India, Pakistan and Bangladesh at the request of Senate Majority Leader Mike Mansfield.

Foreign observers in India are unanimous, he says, in holding that Mrs. Gandhi would win a vote of confidence if elections were held at this time. But of course, elections are not going to be held at this time or at any other time in the foreseeable future.

What has Mrs. Gandhi done for India lately? According to Valeo:

"Inflation has been halted. Hoarders and speculators are disgorging their holdings and corruption has been curbed. Civil servants have become more attentive to public needs. Industry and labor seem to be responding to the government's pleading or pressure for increased output. Similarly, the railroads are providing better service."

Private school bias before High Court

By JAMES J. KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Supreme Court has been leveling citadels of racial segregation, both public and private, for the past 20-odd years. Before the end of this term in June, the court may well obliterate one of the last bastions — the all-white private school. Perhaps this will be cause for universal rejoicing among right-thinking people. Perhaps. But I venture a few reservations.

The court heard argument last week in a test case questioning the right of two all-white private schools in Northern Virginia to reject pupils solely because of their race. The case arrived from a sharply divided Fourth Circuit. By a vote of 4-3, the lower court held that a civil rights statute of 1866 prohibits the schools from racial discrimination. It is risky to speculate on the basis of questions asked during oral argument, but it sounded as if the Supreme Court is likely to affirm.

If this proves to be the upshot, the court will be writing bad law to achieve what might be widely regarded as a good end. Certainly in the view of most persons, race prejudice is an evil. I am a Southerner whose eyes opened late; I know it to be an evil. But the question is whether certain basic principles of law should be twisted and corrupted, in the fashion here proposed, in an effort to overcome the evil. Such an effort strikes me as profoundly unwise.

The facts in the pending case are not in great dispute. Neither Bobbe's Private School in Arlington, nor the Fairfax-Brewster School in Fairfax County, has ever enrolled a Negro child. In the fall of 1972, two black families sued for declaratory, injunctive and monetary relief. They contended that the 1866 statute effectively bars discrimination even in wholly private schools. The trial court agreed, found for the petitioners on every point, and awarded $2,000 in damages.

The 1866 act, it should be kept in mind, is not predicated upon the Fourteenth (equal protection) Amendment; it is predicated upon the Thirteenth Amendment, which put an end to slavery. The old law undertakes to guarantee to all persons "the same right to make contracts ... as is enjoyed by white citizens." The theory is that admission to a private school is a form of contract; qualified white children may make such contracts, but qualified black children cannot; the refusal of a private school to make non-racial contracts imposes upon the black children "a badge of slavery." Because slavery is unconstitutional, all-white admissions policies are unconstitutional.

This is a neat and tidy theory, but it glosses over some troublesome questions — questions not present in earlier cases construing the 1866 law. These earlier cases dealt chiefly with contracts for the sale of real property; they did not involve issues of a right to privacy, a right to free association, a right to manifest personal and private beliefs.

The private school that discriminates racially is manifesting a belief that segregation is desirable in education. Now, that belief may be "wrong," but until this moment the Supreme Court never has held that such private bias is barred by the Constitution. On the contrary, the court steadfastly has protected such a right to be "wrong." The freedom to associate, the court has ruled, "applies to the beliefs we share, and to those we consider reprehensible."

These two small private schools receive no public funds whatever. They have been built and maintained from private resources entirely. They are as private as any dues-paying bridge club, or country club, or fraternal lodge or sewing circle. Unlike a real estate transaction, which involves one buyer and one seller, enrollment in such a school involves the tastes, desires, beliefs and prejudices of several hundred pupils and their families.

Should we, in the anachronistic name of "slavery," impose unwanted private associations upon a free if misguided people? Is a "right to contract" an absolute right to buy one's way into ANY group? It seems to me that when people put up their own money to support their own facility, they have a right to be as exclusive as they please, even if they base their right on reasons we may think to be wrong.

Going to the dogs on NBC

WASHINGTON — It seems to me that NBC made a big mistake in letting Barbara Walters go to ABC. For one thing, who is going to feed the dog Alpo on the Today show? Like so many people, one of the things I always looked forward to on the Today show was watching the Alpo commercials. It may have been my imagination, but I always felt the dog enjoyed his Alpo much more when it was given to him by Barbara Walters than when he had to eat it out of a dish from Gene Shalit or Jim Hartz.

Buchwald

I predict a crisis of the first order after Barbara leaves the Today show. It may go something like this.

An assistant comes rushing in to see the producer. "Who's going to feed Alpo to the dog now that Barbara's gone?"

"Let Betty Furness feed him. For heaven's sake, I have other things to worry about than who feeds a dog on the show."

"But Betty tried to feed him Alpo yesterday and the dog wouldn't eat it. In fact, he hasn't eaten a thing since Barbara left the show."

"Did you try Candice Bergen?"

"Yup. But the dog just looked into the camera and a tear rolled down his cheek. The Alpo people are getting pretty mad and are threatening to take their account over to ABC's Walters-Reasoner Evening News."

"Oh, no. That's all I need. Bring the dog in."

The assistant brings in the dog whose head is drooping.

"What's wrong with you?" the producer shouts at him.

The dog whines and sits down on the rug.

"I wouldn't yell at him," the assistant says. "We've been yelling at him all week and it only depresses him."

The producer takes a more sympathetic approach. "Look, I miss Barbara as much as you do. But life has to go on. The Today show is bigger than any one person. If you don't eat your Alpo, all you're doing is pointing up the fact that Barbara is no longer with us."

The dog closes his eyes.

The producer, in frustration, gets up from his desk and starts pacing the room.

"Is it more money you want? Is that what's bugging you? How much does he get?" the producer asks his assistant.

"One hundred bucks a week."

"Okay, starting next week we'll give you two hundred."

The dog shakes his head.

"We'll give you a limousine and your own hairdresser."

The dog yawns and then starts chewing on the producer's rug.

The producer gets on his knees and says, "Listen, all right, you want me to say it. I'll say it. You mean a lot to the show. I love you, everyone loves you. You want five hundred a week — you get five hundred a week."

The dog sniffs the producer's leg.

"It's no good, boss," the assistant says. "He and Barbara were a team. I think it broke his heart when she decided to go to ABC."

The phone rings and the assistant picks it up. He listens a minute, then says, "It's the William Morris Agency — they claim they're representing the dog."

The producer grabs the phone. "Okay, you got me over a barrel. What do you want? ... You're out of your mind ... You're crazy ... Wait a minute, don't hang up ... Maybe we can work something out ... I'm not saying yes and I'm not saying no ... It's not my decision. It has to go upstairs ... Yeh, I'll get back to you ... Don't do anything until you hear from me." He hangs up.

"What did they demand?" the assistant asks.

The producer sinks down in the chair at his desk.

"They said the dog wants a million dollars."

"A million dollars?"

"That's not all," the producer says. "He also wants to do the evening news with John Chancellor."

GM, White House put brakes on bus

By JACK ANDERSON with LES WHITTEN

WASHINGTON — What's good for General Motors seems to be what's good for the White House.

The two have teamed up to block a major upgrading of the nation's buses in order to protect the auto firm's profit picture, according to a confidential federal study.

In 1971, the government began a $27 million project to develop a bus of the future. It was to have wide doors, special features for the handicapped and other safety and efficiency improvements.

But a federally funded report by Stanford University describes in detail how the new concept of a "Transbus" fell afoul of politics and corporate finagling.

In the beginning, the Urban Mass Transportation Administration provided funds to three firms to build a sample Transbus. The company with the winning model would win contracts that might eventually run into the billions.

The three were General Motors, American General and Rohr Industries. The two smaller firms, American and Rohr, were enthusiastic about trying to produce the new bus and expected continued federal funding.

But, suggests the draft study, "General Motors, which is primarily an auto manufacturer, realized that the Transbus program had the potential of increasing mass transportation usage." This, of course, "translates into a net reduction in auto sales" for General Motors.

Then last year, for what the report describes as "technological, economic and political" reasons, the White House stepped in and scrapped the laboriously prepared design specifications for Transbus.

In their place, the White House invited the bus manufacturers themselves to come up with a bus design as long as it met certain performance standards.

This played right into the hands of General Motors. It permits the giant of the auto industry, which already controls 50 per cent of all bus sales, to build the kind of bus it wants, as opposed to a Transbus.

The White House, meanwhile, has further aided General Motors by holding back future funding for the Transbus project. Since the two smaller companies cannot compete with General Motors unless they get the funding, the White House actions have effectively turned over future bus sales to General Motors — without "Transbus reforms."

Consumer groups and the handicapped fear that the combination of the fund cut-off and General Motors' readiness to build buses with its own funds will doom any hopes of improved mass transit for the handicapped. There have been no major design changes in 15 years.

NAZI EULOGY: The Voice of America recently eulogized Adolf Hitler's leading Slovakian propagandist as a great patriot.

The moving tribute by VOA, which speaks for the U. S. government abroad, was inspired by the funeral of Joseph Pauc, who died a few months ago in Middletown, Pa.

Pauc escaped to the U. S. after World War II. As an editor in Slovakia, he had trumpeted the Nazi line, hailed the persecution of the Jews and praised the "benevolence" of Fuehrer Adolf Hitler.

As late as 1957, Pauc described his wartime work as editor-in-chief of the Nazi newspaper "Slovak" as a cause of "great and sacred truth." Yet, he personally sat on a tribunal that ratified the execution of American-backed Slovakian freedom fighters.

During the Nixon years, the dapper and charming exile worked his way into the affections of Republican leaders and became a top GOP political adviser on ethnic affairs. When we exposed his Nazi past in 1971, he was eased out of the job, but was kept on as a consultant to the Small Business Administration.

Yet, despite his ex-Nazi notoriety, the Voice of America broadcast a long commentary praising his dynamism, enthusiasm and high principles. This glowing tribute to an ex-Nazi was transmitted to Czechoslovakia last November.

Although the VOA mentioned he was a "journalist" in Slovakia, it neglected to add that his "journalism" consisted of spewing out hatred against Jews and the U. S.

Instead, the VOA lauded Pauc's "full Slovak soul" saying his writing would endure "as his legacy." His "many friends and enemies (are) only proof of his truthfulness and strong national feelings."

95 years ago

eulogized the VOA. "He was a dynamic figure."

Footnote: A spokesman for the United States Information Agency, which runs VOA, said USIA head James Keogh, a former Nixon speechwriter, takes full responsibility for the broadcast. It was, said the spokesman, a "routine obituary."

WASHINGTON WHIRL: In an earlier column, we accused Alex Armendaris, the government's irrepressible minority business booster, of mismanaging the taxpayers' money. We reported that he had taken subordinates on junkets, had helped friends get government contracts and had accepted gifts from the contractors. White House sources now tell us that Armendaris will be eased out as director of the Office of Minority Business Enterprise. Armendaris told us he knew of no specific plans to replace him.

Last April, we reported that the U.S. Mint sent 16 experimental aluminum pennies to Capitol Hill for inspection, only to have them mysteriously vanish. Now we have discovered that Mint officials stamped out more than 65,000 of the curiosities during 1974 in violation of orders from Mint Director Mary Brooks.

While records on the 65,000 aluminum pennies appear loosely kept, Ms. Brooks insists that except for those pilfered by members of Congress she can account for them "down to the last penny." The stolen pennies one day may be worth $100,000 each.

Royals open stand in Boston

Lee goes against Fitzmorris

BOSTON (AP) — Bill Lee, ineffective in three starts so far this season, will be on the mound for Boston tonight when the Red Sox host the Kansas City Royals in the first night game of the season at Fenway Park.

Lee, 0-2, has given up 16 runs, 18 hits and 11 walks in 11 1-3 innings, but Manager Darrell Johnson isn't thinking of taking him out of the starting rotation.

"I think Lee has been throwing a little better each time he's been out there," Johnson said. "It would be something else if he had an 0-9 record."

The defending American League champions returned home Sunday from a rain delayed road trip in which they won only one in six games, dropping the last four to the Texas Rangers. They are resting uncomfortably in last place, four games off the pace.

But Johnson isn't worried, blaming the team's ineffectiveness on the rain-out dates.

"No team can play one game in eight days and be right," he said. "It's impossible for the pitchers and hitters to do the job with that kind of routine."

"But there are some encouraging things," he added. "I think our pitching will be much better this time around. I also think we'll start to hit as a team."

Al Fitzmorris, 2-0, will be on the mound tonight for the Royals for the opener of the two-game series.

Following the two-game road trip into Boston, the Royals head for Baltimore for a three-game weekend series against the Orioles.

Kansas City returns home Monday and begins an 11-game home stand, which will see Minnesota, Chicago, Texas and Oakland visiting Royals Stadium.

Ernie Nevers dead at 73

SAN RAFAEL, Calif. (AP) — Pop Warner, who coached Jim Thorpe before moving to Stanford University, called Ernie Nevers the greatest football player of all time.

Nevers, 73, died in a hospital here Monday of a kidney disorder.

The former college and professional football great, a hard-running 205-pound fullback and outstanding linebacker as well, also was rated by Warner above Thorpe as an all-round athlete. Nevers competed in football, basketball, track and baseball at Stanford.

Like Thorpe, whom Warner coached at Carlisle, Nevers was good enough at baseball to play in the major leagues. He pitched three seasons for the American League's St. Louis Browns, switching to National Football League competition each fall.

"I think I could have become a good pitcher or outfielder had I given up football for the diamond," Nevers once said.

Football would have lost one of its greatest stars.

Nevers was among the first men admitted to college football's Hall of Fame and was a charter member of the Pro Football Hall of Fame. In 1969, he was selected to a college football All-Time All-American team chosen by the Football Writers Association of America.

The native of Willow River, Minn., moved to California while in high school and played varsity football at Stanford from 1923 to 1925. His greatest performance as a collegian may have been in the 1925 Rose Bowl when he and the Stanford Indians met Notre Dame with its famous "Four Horsemen" backfield.

Nevers had missed virtually all of the 1924 season, having broken both ankles. He got off crutches just a few days before the game and, playing with heavily taped ankles, ran the ball 34 times, a Rose Bowl record, for 114 yards, which was more than the Fighting Irish's stars totaled.

Notre Dame won 27-10 in a game that included a controversial ruling against Stanford when it appeared Nevers had plunged over the goal line for a touchdown that would have made the score 20-17 in the second half.

Nevers was named the game's outstanding player. Writer Maxwell Stiles said in his book on the Rose Bowl: "On defense, he made about four out of every five tackles and intercepted a pass to start his team on the way to a third period touchdown. What would Nevers have done on two good legs — or even one?"

Nevers signed with the NFL's Duluth Eskimos in 1926 and later starred for the Chicago Cardinals, playing through 1937. In 1929, he set a single-game scoring record which still stands, getting all 40 of the Cardinals' points in a 40-6 victory over the Chicago Bears.

Football injuries played a part in ending Nevers' baseball career. He had a 6-12 pitching record in his three big league seasons and allowed two of Babe Ruth's 60 home runs in 1927.

Nevers worked in public relations and sales promotion for a San Francisco wholesale liquor firm after retiring from pro football. He is survived by his widow, Margery, and a daughter.

Smith given OK; goes for Atlanta

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Cardinal outfielder Reggie Smith got an OK on his injured left shoulder Monday from a team physician and headed for Tuesday's game in Atlanta.

Smith hurt the shoulder April 17, when he crashed into the wall at Busch Stadium here in a game with the Montreal Expos. In the past few days the pain has bothered Smith.

Bluebirds, Gremlins reach district semis

CONCORDIA — Cole Camp has moved into the semifinals of the Missouri State High School Activities Association's district Class A baseball tournament here with a 4-3, Monday evening victory over Kingsville.

Winning pitcher Kim Gooch hurled a one-hitter for the Bluebirds, who will face Sedalia Sacred Heart, which upset fourth-seeded Stover, 3-2, Monday in Sedalia's Liberty Park Stadium.

Thursday's semifinal game between the Bluebirds and the Gremlins is set for 4 p.m. here.

In other Tuesday tournament action here, host and third-seeded Concordia ousted Sweet Springs, 7-4. Curt Schnakenberg picked up the victory; Bill Lemmons was charged with the loss.

Concordia moves into a quarterfinal game with Green Ridge.

The other quarterfinal game finds Smithton going against St. Paul's College High of Concordia.

The tournament is scheduled to conclude at 1 p.m. here Saturday.

Safety first

Boston Bruins' goalie Gerry Cheevers shows his face mask which he decorated to represent the stitches he would have on his face had he not been wearing the mask. Cheevers and his teammates were on their home

Boston Bruins face 'must' game on home ice tonight

BOSTON (AP) — "Our backs are up to the wall," said Coach Don Cherry as he prepared his Boston Bruins for tonight's fourth game of their National Hockey League playoff semifinal series against the Philadelphia Flyers.

Philadelphia, aiming for its third consecutive Stanley Cup, took a 2-1 lead over the Bruins in the best-of-seven series with a 5-2 triumph Sunday.

"We're just going to have to shoot better and take advantage of our scoring opportunities," said Cherry.

The Bruins hadn't given the Flyers many scoring opportunities in the past. In its nine-year history, Philadelphia won just twice in Boston Garden — until Sunday.

That's when goalie Gilles Gilbert let left wing Bill Barber's wrist shot get by, turning the Bruins' 2-1 advantage into a tie and giving the Flyers their first push toward Garden victory No. 3.

Both sides agreed Barber's goal at 19:11 of the second period turned the tide. "It made a big difference to us," Barber said, "getting a goal like that in the last minute and going off the ice tied instead of behind 2-1."

"We died after that second goal," said Cherry. "It's a cardinal rule, especially in the playoffs, not to give up a goal in that last minute."

Added Bruins left wing Don Marcotte: "Maybe we weren't ready. And after we were ahead 2-1, we got away from our own game. They were getting some 3-on-1s and 4-on-2s. That hasn't happened for a long time."

And for tonight, where's the action going to be? "In the corners," said Flyers forward Dave Shultz. "That's where it's going to be decided — going into the corners and coming up with the puck."

Grahame expected back in Aero nets

HOUSTON (AP) — Houston Aeros Coach Bill Dineen likely will return to his all-star goalie Ronnie Grahame Wednesday night when the defending World Hockey Association champion Aeros meet New England in the first game of their WHA semifinal playoff.

But the decision may not be as easy as it would have been prior to last week when backup goalie Wayne Rutledge shook the Aeros out of a two-game losing streak with a 3-2 victory that eliminated the San Diego Mariners from the playoffs.

"Rut (Rutledge) has the perfect mental attitude," Dineen said. "I don't worry about him. I'd put him in a game under any circumstances, at any time. He stays prepared to play."

The circumstances last Friday night were that Grahame had been worn down by the lengthy season and the series against the Mariners. Houston took a 3-0 lead in games before the Mariners battled back with two straight victories.

"All you can do is do your best," said Rutledge, who hadn't seen action in 30 days and had not been in playoff competition in three years.

Rutledge turned back 41 shots on goal by the Mariners in his rare start.

Rutledge has had the misfortune the past two seasons of playing behind hot goalies. During the 1973-74 season, Don McLeod led Houston to 12 victories in 14 playoff games. Last year Houston won its second straight WHA crown with Grahame winning 12 of 13 games in goal.

The second game of the Aeros-Whalers playoff series will be Friday night here before the series shifts to Hartford, Conn., for games Sunday and Tuesday.

16-year-old bags record wild turkey

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The state Department of Conservation says a 43-pound, eight-ounce turkey bagged by a teen-ager over the weekend in Stone County broke a state turkey record and may do the same to a national record.

Kelly Davis, 16, killed the big bird Saturday, bringing in a turkey which was nearly 10 pounds larger than the previous state record set in 1971.

Through the first week of the turkey season, Missouri hunters took 5,433 birds, with the east central and Ozark areas leading the hunt. Both regions were well ahead of the 1975 pace. The season closes May 9.

Although the department said the turkey may be a national record, there was some question over the possibilities that the bird was tame.

Two conservation agents checked the bird and reported it showed all the characteristics of a wild turkey, although there was some suspicion that a bird that large may have been a tame turkey.

RUST

Rust can be likened to the common cold. But unlike its medical counterpart, rust continues its reign of aggravation largely on a foundation of ignorance — ignorance not of the methods of combating rust, but rather of the knowledge that such methods exist. Rust can be stopped and it can be prevented.

Hendrick's homer topples Athletics

OAKLAND (AP) — George Hendrick, with as many reasons as anyone to be hot, stayed cool and won a game for the Cleveland Indians.

The outfielder, who was called "Easy Rider" as a rookie with the Oakland A's five years ago, started the day by getting a jaywalking ticket from an Oakland policeman on the street outside the Indians' hotel.

In Monday night's game, Hendrick shrugged off a questionable strike call at the plate in the eighth inning and came back with a 10th inning home run off A's relief star Rollie Fingers, making Cleveland a 5-4 winner.

"The way I look at it, umpires are part of the game. I figure I should get at least one pitch to hit each time I'm up, and if the umps call me out it means I didn't swing at my pitch," Hendrick said after beating his former team in the only major league baseball game of the day.

Fingers threw a belt-high slider that proved to be Hendrick's pitch, one that was hit over the fence in straightaway center field. It was Hendrick's fourth homer of the year.

"I got all my pitches where I wanted them," insisted Fingers, who entered the game in the eighth in search of his third save and ended up with his first loss of the season instead. "I guess pitchers get into slumps just like hitters."

Indians Manager Frank Robinson was thrown out of the game in the eighth, after complaining about a low-pitch strike called on Hendrick. Five innings earlier, the A's Don Baylor and Indians starting pitcher Dennis Eckersley were ejected moments apart, Baylor after being thrown out at first base and Eckersley for whatever he called plate umpire Rich Garcia.

With two outs and two A's on base, Eckersley's string of 17 consecutive scoreless innings ended on a 2-0 pitch which Joe Rudi belted deep into the left field bleachers to tie the score at 3-3.

The A's Dick Bosman lasted only 2 2-3 innings in his first 1976 start, giving up three runs in the first when Cleveland had four singles, including one by Buddy Bell who raised his average to .385.

The 3-3 tie was broken in the A's fifth when reliever Stan Thomas made a throwing error and walked three men. Cesar Tovar with the bases loaded to force in a run, Cleveland got just one hit in 4 2-3 innings against Jim Todd but got to Fingers quickly, tying the score in the ninth when Alan Ashby, Rick Manning and Duane Kuiper singled.

Tom Buskey, 1-1, second Cleveland reliever, got the pitching victory and Dave LaRoche earned a save with a strong 10th inning performance ending with three straight pitches which struck out Phil Garner with the bases loaded.

The Indians went over the 500 mark with the victory, their fifth in the last seven games, and the A's fell to .500.

His second year with the Braves was the club's first winning season. The 42-40 record was good enough to get Buffalo into the playoffs, but the club was eliminated in the preliminary round.

Last year the team posted a 49-33 record and was again kayoed in the first playoff round. This season, with Ramsay working under a one-year contract, the Braves' record was 46-36 and they beat Philadelphia in the first playoff series before bowing in the quarterfinals.

Snyder had said in April that Ramsay's future with the Braves depended largely on how well the club performed in the playoffs.

"All of us in the Braves' organization appreciate the job Jack Ramsay has done with the ballclub during the past four years and wish him well in the future," Snyder stated in the official announcement.

Ramsay's future could be coaching an NBA franchise in Atlanta or Los Angeles, if recent reports are correct.

Jack Ramsay

reported that a personality conflict between Ramsay and Snyder was a main reason for the sacking.

Ramsay became Snyder's third coach in three seasons when he signed a three-year contract in 1972. He weathered a 21-61 season before building the team into a playoff contender.

Anderson set the stage for what was to be a record-shattering day for the Tigers in spite of their loss.

Torey Kelchner cracked both the varsity and the stadium records with her time of 2:46.4 in the 880. That bettered Susan Cowherd's 1974 record of 2:50.0, and the stadium record set last year by Sharon Marshall of Columbia Hickman at 2:52.5.

Paula Nuzum dashed Linda Klover's 1973 220-yard stadium record out of the books. Nuzum won the event in a time of 28.1. The previous mark was 28.7.

Kate Labahn set a stadium record with her throw of 98-6 1/2 in the discus, bettering her own mark of 91-8 1/2 set last year. LaBahn bettered the varsity record in the shot put with a toss of 32-1 1/2. She finished third in that event, which saw the previous Jennie Jaynes' record of 32-0 fall by the wayside. Knob Noster claimed that event at 35-8 1/2.

The Smith-Cotton quarter-mile relay team tied the record of 55.1 with their second-place finish. Knob Noster won the event in stadium record time at 54.0.

Pact not renewed

Ramsay out as Braves' coach

BUFFALO (AP) — "I have no regrets," said Buffalo Braves Coach Jack Ramsay after the club announced his contract would not be renewed.

"I think I've done a good work here. No other expansion team in the history of the league has done what we did."

Braves owner Paul L. Snyder sacked Ramsay Monday afternoon, 25 hours after the team had been eliminated from the National Basketball Association playoffs by the Boston Celtics.

The announcement of Ramsay's departure followed a 45-minute meeting between the owner and the coach.

"He said he thought I had done a good job, but for the best interests of the franchise he was going to hire a new coach," Ramsay said after the meeting.

There was no immediate word on who would succeed Ramsay.

Records tumble, but so do S-C girl thinclads

Smith-Cotton took first place in eight events in Jennie Jaynes Stadium Tuesday afternoon, but bowed to the depth of Knob Noster in a girls track and field dual meet, 63-50.

Kathy Anderson notched three first-place finishes for the Tigers, winning the 80-yard low hurdles, the high jump and the long jump.

Her jump of 16-6 1/2 in the long jump established both a school and a Jennie Jaynes Stadium record.

Anderson also set a stadium record with her clocking of 11.9 in the hurdles, and tied her own stadium record of 5-0 in the high jump.

Anderson held both the previous long jump records at 16-2 1/2 (school) and 16-1 1/2 (stadium). Both marks were set last year.

In the hurdles, Anderson and Kay Burton of Columbia Hickman were the previous record-holders with times of 12.2 in Jennie Jaynes.

Anderson was only one-tenth of a second off her own school record in the hurdles.

Young Cleveland Cavaliers brace for powerful Celtics

CLEVELAND (AP) — "The Boston Celtics... just saying it can give you goosebumps."

That was the way Cleveland Cavaliers Coach Bill Fitch put his feelings about the vaunted National Basketball Association powerhouse into words earlier this season.

Now his young Cavaliers face the awesome task of playing the veteran Celtics in the best-of-seven NBA Eastern Conference playoff finals.

Worse yet, the Celtics will hold the homecourt advantage on the basis of a better regular-season record.

News of Boston's decisive sixth-game victory over Buffalo Sunday brought to mind the early season assessment of the Celtics by the Cleveland mentor.

"The thing that separates the Celtics from other teams is the intensity which they bring to every game," Fitch explained. "We (the Cavaliers) get that kind of intensity for a few games and then come out flat for a game or two."

"We'll be a great team when we can have the same kind of intensity the Celtics bring to every game along with their talent," he added.

Fitch went to Boston and Buffalo to scout the final two games of that series after his Cavs tripped the Washington Bullets in seven games. Watching those games didn't change his opinion of Boston.

"Boston is quick, smart, powerful, can rebound and they can shoot," Fitch said. "Their quickness is their best weapon. It will force us to make a big adjustment."

Comparing the Celtics to the Bullets, Fitch added, "Boston is quicker than Washington. We've got to make them play our game and because of all their veterans, it will be tough to do."

The first two games of the series are scheduled at Boston Thursday night and Sunday. The teams then come to Cleveland for games Tuesday, May 11, and Friday, May 14.

Guthrie gets Indy go-ahead

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Indianapolis 500-mile race officials gave Janet Guthrie the green flag Monday to take her rookie exam for the May 30 race.

Miss Guthrie is the first woman ever to enter the race. She must pass her rookie test and then qualify at time trials to break into the 33-car field.

Tom Binford, chief steward at Indianapolis, said he reviewed Miss Guthrie's performance in Sunday's Trenton 200 and judged her to have the necessary skills and experience to attempt to drive at Indy.

Miss Guthrie dropped out of the Trenton race after 79 laps when her car developed mechanical problems. She had been the 14th fastest qualifier among the 22 starters.

"I think she looked fine," Dick King, USAC competition director said. "I think she ran as strong as any other rookie has done. I watched her pretty closely."

Johnny Rutherford, who won the 200, Tom Sneva and three-time Indy winner A.J. Foyt praised Miss Guthrie's driving ability.

She had been driving under a conditional U.S. Auto Club license on this year's championship circuit.

The rookie test includes driving laps at varying speeds, beginning at 160 miles per hour.

"I just hope this answers the feeling that, well, women can't do it, they don't have the stamina," Miss Guthrie said after her showing at Trenton. "They can look at what happened today (Sunday) and say it can be done."

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The talkative declarer would take a quick look at dummy and remark, "I really should have bid seven." Then he would lay down his ace of spades. West would show out and after some thunderous silence and slow play to the next several tricks, he would find himself one trick short of his small-slam contract.

This would not happen to a quiet, careful declarer. He would know that a 5-0 suit break occurs four per cent of the time.

He would check to see if he could guard against this unpleasant possibility and find that the lead of a low trump toward dummy's ten would guard against five trumps in either hand. He would calculate quickly that a low spade would risk 30 points to gain 1430. He would say to himself, "The odds are good," and lead toward that ten spot.

West would show out, but South wouldn't care. He would ruff the heart return after East took his jack of trumps, enter dummy with a diamond, lead the three of spades, finesse the eight and score his small slam.

Ask the Jacobys

Some 30 years ago one of our Oklahoma readers picked up ace and a small spade and 11 solid diamonds. He wonders what the odds are against holding 11-2-0-0 distribution are.

They aren't so great. You should expect to pick up an 11-card suit about once every 35,000 deals and 11-2-0-0 about once every 100,000. Of course, that means a lot of bridge, but Oswald Jacoby has held two 11-card suits in his 60 years at the table.

Ann Landers

Liars, thieves all in family

Dear Ann Landers: Will you please print my plea? I ask this because I love my children and hate to see them disillusioned. They are so sad. What has happened is making my mother look like a liar and it really isn't her fault. Thank you, Miss Landers. You are a fine person.

Dear Mr. You-Know-Who-You-Are: I'm glad you liked the tapestry of the horse that hung on the wall of the motel room you and Mom occupied last night. She said it was really beautiful and was so pleased when you gave it to her as a gift. This morning when she saw my children Mom described the tapestry and the kids became so excited they asked if she would give it to them to hang on our living-room wall. Grandma said yes.

Several months ago I called my doctor in the middle of the night. I was desperate. I begged him to help me. Do you know what he said? "Come see me tomorrow."

Finally I got smart and realized that for $50 an hour I could have a terrific vacation and it would do me a lot more good.

So please, Ann, when people write for advice, give them your best shot. You might be the only one who is willing to speak out. — An Admirer

Dear Ad: I "speak out" plenty, and I'll continue to do so. Many people who write for advice know what they ought to do. They just need someone to tell them to go ahead and do it. Others need a lot more than advice. They should have continuing help. And this is when I suggest counseling.

I realize one's chances for getting a first-rate counselor are the same as getting a first-rate doctor, lawyer, plumber, auto mechanic or hairdresser. No better than 50-50.

Dear Ann Landers: I read your column every day and think your advice is very good. That's why I hate to see you cop out and suggest "counseling."

I've been to many counselors, analysts, psychologists, etc. None of them did me any good. The first few visits they listen, look at the ceiling a lot, nod their heads and ask about your childhood.

The next few visits they ask what YOU think should be done. After several visits they tell you to do what YOU think is best. This is advice? If I could depend on my own judgment why would I need THEM?

CONFIDENTIAL To Need to Know: A woman who is a chronic alcoholic has about a 50-50 chance of having a normal, healthy child. Yes, you do have cause for concern.

Are your parents too strict? Hard to reach? Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How to Get More Freedom," could help you bridge the generation gap. Send 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Hooping it up

These graduating seniors at Wellesley College in Wellesley, Mass., partake in a college tradition — the hoop rolling contest. The first one across the finish line received a bouquet and, according to legend, will be the first to marry.

Take oxygen as prescribed

Dear Dr. Lamb — If a person is on oxygen it is harmful if he doesn't use it for part of the time as long as that person is not out of breath or short of breath.

Also is it harmful if a person increases the oxygen flow beyond the prescribed amount at times?

Dear Reader — If a person needs oxygen it is not a good idea to do without it for any extensive period of time. How long a person can get along without the oxygen depends a lot on how severely he needs it.

In a healthy person the lack of oxygen will be associated with an increase in respiration. When a person has a disease which may have already influenced respiration this is a bit difficult to judge.

I would like to caution you that an individual's judgement is often impaired by a lack of oxygen. We know from studies done on healthy people that they respond to lack of oxygen much like people respond to too much alcohol. They may appear happy and euphoric and lose contact with reality or lose their normal sense of judgement. For this reason I don't think anyone who is on oxygen should be turning it off on his own. Someone else should be around to judge how long it could be off and to control the situation properly.

Certainly if the heart rate increases, or there is any change in the skin to show that there is not sufficient oxygen in the blood or if the person shows any signs of breathlessness the oxygen should be restarted at once.

In certain conditions damage from lack of oxygen may occur despite no apparent changes in respiration. It is now generally believed that increased oxygen in the first few days after an acute heart attack helps to prevent damage to part of the heart muscle.

There is an optimal level for oxygen. Fortunately most of the devices that patients can handle themselves are unable to deliver too much oxygen. But if you have a closed situation where all of the oxygen has been definitely inhaled into the lungs then increasing it too much can induce oxygen toxicity. Prolonged use of excess oxygen in animals will thicken the membrane of the lung's air sacs. When the oxygen is cut back or discontinued the animals will then have convulsions and will be unable to transport oxygen across the lung membrane. Oxygen toxicity in its most severe form is capable of causing death.

I would summarize my comments to you by saying it's a good idea to do what the doctor tells you. A patient should leave the oxygen where the doctor has told him it should be. He should not increase it and he certainly should not discontinue it on his own. (NEA)

Hollywood stars to honor Betty

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hollywood stars will give a party in honor of First Lady Betty Ford on Thursday in Los Angeles, during her three-day California campaign trip.

The stars — Glenn Ford, Eva Gabor, Cary Grant and Helen Reddy — are the host committee for the party, along with Bob Hope's wife, Delores.

The party will wind up Mrs. Ford's California trip, which includes campaign appearances at a Mexican restaurant in Ghirardelli Square in San Francisco on Wednesday and fundraising private parties in San Diego Wednesday night and Los Angeles Thursday.

Comedian gets heart pacemaker

NEW YORK (AP) — Comedian Myron Cohen, 72, was recovering at Nyack, N.Y., Hospital Tuesday after undergoing an emergency operation to receive a heart pacemaker.

The surgery on Monday forced cancellation of his scheduled opening at the Rainbow Grill atop the RCA Building in Rockefeller Center.

Cohen's manager, Harry Steinman, said the comedian had no history of heart trouble but became ill Sunday and was ordered by his doctor into the hospital.

A pacemaker provides electronic stimulation for the heart.

Coroner's jury rules killing was accidental

AVA, Mo. (AP) — A coroner's jury ruled Monday night that an Independence, Mo., teenager died of an accidental gunshot wound at the hands of a police officer.

The jury of five men and one woman deliberated 45 minutes after a three-hour hearing into the controversial shooting death of Edward Paul, 17.

Handyman charged in stabbing

ST. LOUIS (AP) — A handyman was charged Monday with first-degree murder in the stabbing death of Dorothy M. Sutherland, 45, of south St. Louis, police said.

Her body, clad in a nightgown and covered with black paint, was found Sunday night at the foot of the basement steps of her home, police said. She had been stabbed 21 times.

Charles L. Cross, who had lived in the home for 2 1/2 years, was charged with murder.

Ronald R. Sutherland, Mrs. Sutherland's husband, is director of the McDonnell Planetarium in St. Louis. The couple had been married 12 years.

Cross told police Mrs. Sutherland provoked the attack. He said they argued over living arrangements in the home. Cross had a room in the basement of the home.

He said he threw a can of paint at her in self-defense. The paint can and a teddy bear were found near the body. Police said the basement showed signs of a struggle.

"Paint was splattered all over the walls in the basement and tracked throughout the house," said Police Sgt. Michael Green.

"The living room and the rest of the first floor were in complete disarray," he said. "It looks like there was a lot of running."

Cross went to the home of neighbors and held them that he had hurt Mrs. Sutherland, police said. Neighbors found the body and called police.

Cross, wearing paint-splattered blue jeans and a jacket, and his hands covered with paint, offered no resistance when arrested, police said.

4-H news

The annual Pettis County 4-H Share-the-Fun Festival was held at Smith-Cotton High School's auditorium recently and saw a total of 14 acts presented by 4-H'ers.

The winning act, entitled "Hats Off to America," a musical, was presented by the South Abell 4-H Club. Other clubs receiving blue ribbons were Houstonia, Longwood, Neighbors, Brown and Prairie Ridge.

Clubs participating also including Eldorado, Northwest, St. Paul's R-1 Hustlers, Beaman, Quisenberry, Van Natta and East Sedalia.

Thousands of anarchists, communists and labor agitators were arrested between 1919-20 by agents of the Department of Justice. Hundreds were deported to Russia.

Ex-Sedalian ends career in Forest Service

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Russel McReory, a former Sedalian, recently resigned after having completed a career of 40 years in the U.S. Forest Service.

McReory was born in Sedalia and moved to Oakland, Calif., in his early childhood with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. George P. McReory.

After service in the Lassen and Plumas National Forests, located in northern California, McReory worked on the staff of the California regional office in San Francisco. Then he became supervisor of the Stanislaus National with headquarters in Sonoma. Four years later, he was transferred to the Portland, Ore., regional office where he became assistant regional forester for lands. He served in this capacity until 1963 when he was appointed director of the division of lands in the national office of the Forest Service here. He climaxed his career with an outstanding record as associate deputy chief of the Forest Service.

Students entertain local club

In recognition of National Music Week, members of the Sedalia Rotary Club were entertained by an instrumental group from Smith-Cotton High School at the regular meeting of the club at noon Monday at Ramada Inn.

Robert Cummings, Smith-Cotton music director, in his introduction of the students and their numbers, noted that each musician appearing on the program had received a "1" rating, the highest attainable.

The program included a flute trio by Karla Kirkpatrick, Valerie Walker and Karen Anders; vocal solos by Christy Clary and Sandy Hawley, who were both accompanied by Dena Catlett, a trombone solo by Eric Smith, accompanied by Kristy Leuch, piano solos by Marj Steen and Dena Catlett, and a brass sextet composed of Bill Eltzhoitz and Mark Thomas on trumpet, Christy Clary on the French horn, Eric Smith on trombone, David Kzoaki on the baritone horn and Bryan Cook on the bass horn.

The program was arranged by Mrs. Del Heckart, music week chairman of the Helen G. Steele Music Club. Mrs. Heckart, in her introduction of the program, read a poem, "Music Opens New Vistas" by Miss Hazel Lang. The poem appeared in the Sunday edition of The Sedalia Democrat-Capital.

In other club activities, Bill Arnold, club president, announced the Sedalia club was first in attendance of all clubs in Rotary District 607 for the month of April with a 93 percent attendance record. He called on Bruce McCully, who introduced David Malmo as a new member of the club.

Guests introduced by Byrl Stout were Dr. and Mrs. Chester Kirkpatrick, with A.B. Case; Mrs. Case, also a guest of her husband; Mrs. David Malmo, a guest of the club; Mrs. Jerry Harlan, president of the Helen G. Steele Music Club, with her husband; and Bill Register, a guest of Ray Paul.

Sedalia Lodge No. 125 B.P.O.E. in regular meetings the 1st and 3rd Wednesday at 8 p.m. All Elks welcome. Paul Rialti, E.R. Mahlon Rhodes, Sec'y.

Pettis County Veterans of Foreign Wars, Post No. 2591, in regular meetings, the 1st and 3rd Wednesday nights at 8 p.m., 121 South Ohio. Howard E. Nichols, Comm. Leslie V. Sturms, Adj.

Wagon train headed for Kansas City

OLATHE, Kan. (AP) — A Bicentennial wagon train following the Santa Fe trail pulled into this eastern Kansas community Monday evening—an hour late because a less hilly route was chosen to save wear and tear on the horses.

The train was to remain here Tuesday before moving on to Kansas City Wednesday and then to Independence, Mo., Friday, where it will be joined by wagons from an Oregon Trail column and a wagon group from Southwest Missouri. Independence was the starting point of the Santa Fe, Oregon and California trails.

The wagons will parade in Independence Saturday, then board river barges for a float trip to Pittsburgh, Pa. via the Missouri, Mississippi and Ohio rivers.

Hundreds of persons turned out in Olathe to welcome the 12 wagons and their occupants.

The wagons pitched camp for the night on the grounds of the historic Mahaffie Stage coach Station north of Olathe. Built in 1865, Mahaffie Station was the first hotel and stage coach station in Johnson County and the first on the Santa Fe Trail.

The train, sponsored by the state of Pennsylvania, is expected to reach Valley Forge, Pa., by July 4.

The Sedalia Scottish Rite Club will hold a business meeting Thursday, May 6 at the Masonic Temple at 7:30 p.m. Broadway at Missouri. All Scottish Rite Masons are urged to attend.
